Saturday, March 22, 2008
Update #3*

On Saturday, March 22, 2008, at approximately 1:00 p.m., I made another assessment of the current weather conditions. I contacted Communications who advised that there had been discussion that the roads had dramatically improved over the past several hours.

With that information from Communications, the Level 2 was lifted, and we will return to no level for the current weather conditions.

I went out and observed the roads and noted supporting evidence of what I had been told by the Communications Division.

This winter weather advisory is terminated at this time.
